AVOID TREES DURING STORM

One Way of Dodging the Thunderbolts.

STEEL IN ONE'S HAND

Is Insulated by Air and is not Dangerous.

In Ohio Lightning Kills More Farmers During Summer Than Railroads do Passengers in Year.

In Ohio the lightning season opened early and wide this year.
In March, 17 buildings were burned, with a loss of $41,750; 3 persons were killed, 8 stunned and one had his eye burned out.A lightning rod, whether of steel or copper, should be run up at one end or corner, along the comb of the building and down, so as to make a circuit with the ground.The holdfasts should be of a matterial that cannot rust, and should keep the rod firm at a distance of an inch or two from the roof or wall, so that trash and dirt cannot be held behind it.King Solomon's temple, in addition to its roof of gold, was, as stated by the historian Josephus, anointed from end to end with heavily gilded pieces of iron in ancient form. This protected it from lightning in a tempestuous climate for a thousand years. Although the specifications for the temple were made by the Architect of the Universe, the method is not advised for farm barns. Cluster, crown or star points should be used rather than the single spear.Ornamental vases on a roof point are unobjectionable if they do not present a large surface to wind pressure. The stalwart steer is a thing of beauty, but he may fail to revolve and cause the point to be blown down at the time it is post needed.The ends of the rod must go near enough to the underground water-beds to be in earth that is always moist. The electricity of the earth, usually negative, abides in the moisture therein. Miners, several hundred feet below the surface, are sometimes shocked during a thunderstorm.In most localities, a hole of sufficient depth for the burial of a rod-end can be made with a spud.
One end may well be grounded near the rain-spout. The use of a mass of iron or bed of charcoal or water-tube or copper can, for holding moisture at the rod's end is worth the cost if the building to be protected is an expensive one.To connect the rod with the gas line, as some architects advise, is unwise. Within a month, two fires have been reported, one from Cincinatti and one from Lisbon, in which lightning bored a hole in a gas pipe and then ignited the escaping gas.Avoid trees, especially tall ones having rough bark and big leaves.
The smoother the bark and the more pointed the leaves, the less is the danger. Run from the barn, if full of green hay, it is the most dangerous place on earth—the sharp spire being in the sky. The steam given off from rain-wet live stock weakens the resistance to lightning of the air surrounding them, just as moisture from sweating hay weakens it over the barn.
Among the many foolish statements in regard to lightning are,that it is unwise to handle scissors or other articles of iron or steel during a storm; that one is safe in an iron bed, and that one is imperiled by nearness to the gas or water piping of the house. A piece of steel or iron in one's hand is so insulated by air that it is not a source of danger. In March, near Fremont, a lady was seriously injured by lightning while occupying an iron bedstead. Houses having gas and water pipes are so seldom struck that it is no use worrying while in them.Because the rain-wet sides of the house furnish a very much better conductor for electricity than the dry air within it, the safest place is the center of the room. The chimney which furnishes the highest point on the house, should be shunned. It does not matter if windows be open or shut or screened.
Any place in the house is safe enough if any one of the lightning rods, now being offered in Ohio, has been properly placed on it.In Ohio, lightning kills two and a half as many farmers in the summer as the railway kills passengers in the whole year.

5-11-31Carpets Hold Tenants.
"Have you rugs or carpets?" asked the landlord of a prospective tenant.
"Carpets," said the woman.
"I'm glad of that," said the landlord.
"I've got so I always ask that question, and whenever possible I rent to the people who are so old-fashioned as to cling to carpets. There is nothing like a carpet to hold a tenant in a place. A lease isn't half so effective.
Carpets are cut to fit the floors and it will require pretty big inducements to get their owner to pull up stakes and go some place else where the carpets will have to be made all over again. The advocate of rugs is held down by no such considerations. Rugs will fit any floor and the person using them will move every time he feels like it. Therefore, give me tenants with the carpet habit."PLAYS & PLYERS*THIS IS "UNO" He Takes An Important Part on the Bill at the Family TheatreThe Four Franks, in a comedy and musical sketch is by all means the feature act at the Marion Family Theatre this week. The quartette introduce song and comedy that is exceptionally clever and the sketch entitled "A Mixed Up Af-fair" is of great entertaining consequence. The two large audiences which assembled last night were especially delighted with the act, which is undoubtedly one of the best that Manager Vail has ever billed in the local play house.Among other acts which seem to please to a reasonable degree was one introduced by Meyers and Mason. Some exceedingly clever kicking stunts were introduced in it.
Louis Arnot and Company in a sketch, "Regan's Luck," proved unusually clever.An act which pleased to a high degree was H. C. Pope with his trained dog "Uno." The animal was directed through many exceedingly clever tricks, doing many stunts which were simply marvelous.Concluding features were Miss Coleman in the illustrated song, "When the Mocking Birds Are Singing in the Wildwood," and the usual ten yard of entertaining film from the moving picture machine.OUTCOME OF EXPERIMENTS

Will be Watched With Great Interest.

CHEMISTS WILL INSTALL

Electrical Apparatus to be Used at Local Plant.

Experts will for the First Time Make a Real Test of the New Electrolytic Process.Arrangements are now being made by the Department of Agriculture of the United States government to make a series of experiments in destroying the germ life in the effluent at the local sewage disposal plant.For several months, Messrs. J. O.
Meadows and C. P. Hoover, chemists of the department have been making experiments at the plant, but as yet they have been unable to find a substance that will work the desired result at a practical cost. At first sulphate of copper was tried. The experiments were successful, but the proper storage of the effluent could not be secured and in the event of an epidemic in this city the effluent could not be purified except at great expense by the use of sulphate of copper.The experiments with chloride of lime have been practically concluded.
It is possible to destroy the germ of life in the water, but the cost of purifying all of the effluent would make it impractical.Within a few days, work will be commenced, installing electrical apparatus for making the new series of experiments. The chemists will submit quantities of salt diluted to an electrical process, after which it will be mixed with the water issuing from the filter beds at the plant.The result of the experiments will be watched with great interest over the country as it is the first time a real test of the electrolytic process, as it is termed, has been made. Chief Chemist Brenner, of the Agricultural Department, will take charge of the experiment and will be assisted by A. Elliott Kimberly, of the state board of health, and Messrs. Hoover and Meadows.Superintendent R. A. Burnett, of the plant, is prepared to give the experts all the assistance possible in getting ready for the tests.CHARLES SEITER BADLY INJUREDRight Foot Catches in Rapidly Moving Belt.Thrown Fifteen Feet and Sustains a Severe Scalp Wound—Rendered Unconscious by Fall.While walking through the electric power house at the Marion Steam Shovel company's plant about 9 o'clock, Tuesday night, Charles Seiter, foreman of the erection room, had his right foot caught in a belt moving at a speed of 50 revolutions a minute. The belt carried him in its course for the fraction of a second and then hurled him headlong to the end of the room. He fell on his head, 15 feet from the belt.The accident was one of the most peculiar that ever happened at the Steam Shovel plant. Seiter struck with such force that he was rendered unconscious. Men in the power house carried him to the company's hospital, where Dr. J. G.
Seiter was summoned to render surgical aid. A deep gash several inches in length in Seiter's head was closed and he was taken to his home on Olney avenue.Seiter had his right leg and thigh badly bruised but none of his injuries will be serious.Outsiders Spoiled Sport.A pack of English foxhounds were

Egotism Rebuked.Anent the Longfellow revival, Jacob H. Schiff, in the course of the recent dinner that he gave in New York in honor of James McCrea, the president of the Pennsylvania railroad, told an interesting story about the poet."During one of Longfellow's visits to New York," he said, "Booth, who was playing Hamlet, was taken suddenly ill, and it was seen that his understudy would have to take his place that night.""The understudy was highly elated, and in order to have a sufficiently distinguished and appreciative audience he sat down forthwith and wrote some dozen notes to the effect that he would take Booth's place that night and dispatched them to everybody of distinction in New York that he had ever met or heard of.""One of these notes went to Longfellow. Longfellow's laconic answer was:

"Thanks for timely warning."

The National Anthem.Admiral Dewey told the story of the adoption of the "Star-spangled Banner" as the national anthem at a meeting of the Francis Scott Key Memorial association, held recently in Washington.
He said he was instrumental in its adoption by this government, stating that once while he was abroad and was dining with Prince Henry of Prussia, on the latter's flagship, he had played "Hail Columbia." He called the prince's attention to the fact that it was not a national anthem, and referred to the "Star-spangled Banner." Later he and Justice Moody, then secretary of the navy, discussed the incidence, the result of which was the issuance of the president's order designating the "Star-spangled Banner" as the recognized national anthem of this government.Only Explanation.It was bargain day.
